Landscape Elements for a Healthy Watershed: Brian Wegener, Tualatin River Keepers

Brian Wegener will talk about how storm water runoff impacts urban streams and different ways of reducing those impacts including green streets, rain gardens, eco-roofs, bioswales, and street trees. He will also talk about the Parking Forest project, using a specially engineered soil that helps trees to thrive in the hostile environment of a parking lot.

Brian is a lifelong river enthusiast who has been on Tualatin River Keepers staff since 2003. He has extensive expertise in municipal storm water regulations, green infrastructure, wetland permits, and grassroots advocacy. Brian leads TRK's Watershed Watch and works as a catalyst with TRK's network of volunteer scientists to keep abreast of all new developments impacting our river. He earned a B.S. & M.S. in Mathematics, PSU. *mg education credit

Hoyt Arboretum 4000 SW Fairview Blvd., Portland, OR 97221 www.hoytarboretum.org

What better place to see and learn identification skills about Oregon trees? We'll wander a little (or not), enjoy refreshments and the wisdom of the Hoyt volunteers. We will meet in front of the visitors' center at 1pm - tours from 1-2:30 pm with refreshments to follow. Arboretum volunteer tour guides will take groups of us through the gorgeous diversity of trees that thrive here, sharing wisdom about seasonal changes and cultural needs. Then join other Master Gardeners for some summer refreshments in an Arboretum shelter. Come early, stay late, choose fun transportation, enjoy the adventure your way!
